

Hand-selected by our therapists, the items in these kits are designed to offer children an opportunity to fidget at home, in the car, in school, etc. and receive sensory feedback.

Our owners, Joe and Kate Lundgren, have two autistic sons and can attest to their kids losing things! We suggest you put some items away for future use before showing your child the kits and pull them out as things get lost to replace them. Also, you can use our CEPT bag for everything (stuffed animals, electronics, etc). You can refer to it as the "play kit" and your kids will identify this as something they need to take with them when they are leaving the house. We suggest making it something they get to use only when they are going someplace versus them growing bored with it at home.
